

The Next Phase in the Voting Wars

October 2022 - With the 2022 midterm elections just around the corner, we share an article that examines the challenges surrounding the election process in the United States today. In Election deniers and defenders poised for next phase in voting wars, Steven Rosenfeld describes the dynamics at work and warns that the inability of the losing side to accept the results of an election constitutes a serious threat to democracy. The 2022 midterm elections may well test if the system can hold.

Read the article.

“We will soon find out if American democracy is robust enough.” Sue Halpern

The author, Steven Rosenfeld, is editor, chief correspondent and senior writing fellow for Voting Booth, a project of the Independent Media Institute. He has also reported for National Public Radio, Marketplace, Christian Science Monitor Radio, Salon, AlterNet and the American Prospect.